HUD Publishes FY 2022 Income Limits

The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has published the income limit data set for fiscal year \(FY\) 2022. The set consists of several components, including the following:

- The income limit documentation system, which shows the median income for each area of the country plus the low, very low, and extremely low income limits for households ranging in size from one to eight persons
- The median family income documentation system
- A transmittal notice (PDR-2022-02)
- Income limits methodology
- Tables for Section 8 income limits in PDF
- Data for Section 8 income limits (MS Excel)

You'll find links to all of the components of the FY 2022 income limit data set on this page at the HUD User website. The limits became effective Monday, April 18, and remain effective until they are superseded by next year's limits.

HUD Publishes New PH Data Dashboard

HUD's Office of Public and Indian Housing (PIH) has published a new Public Housing Data Dashboard that shows a variety of data points and visualizations relevant to the public housing program. The new resource displays resident characteristics, unit occupancy trends, scores from the Public Housing Assessment program, and information about funding, eligibility, and energy use. The data can be sorted and filtered by region, state, field office, and public housing authority. According to the webpage, most of the dashboard data points are updated weekly, but the data relevant to resident characteristics is only updated quarterly.

You'll find the new dashboard and other resources on this page at HUD's website.
